

ATTENTION: PULTENEY and KEUKA LAKE AREA RESIDENTS

Chesapeake Energy is proposing to use an abandoned gas well in Pulteney for disposal of their toxic brine waste water from natural gas drilling.

The proposal is for 200,000 gallons/day of toxic brine and chemical filled waste water which is imported from PA and NY. Over a 10 year period this would be almost 750,000,000 (3/4 of a billion) gallons!!

Be aware of the potential risks of having a toxic, brine waste water disposal in Pulteney:

- Contamination of well water and Keuka Lake. Individual well water testing costs about $500. Can you afford that every year?
- Instantaneously destroying property values in Pulteney and around Keuka Lake
- Economic damage done to the wine, grape and tourism industries could be immense, as the wine industry provides $3.7 billion to the New York State economy every year.
- The Wine Trail was not designed for heavy toxic brine truck traffic
- Deep injection wells have been linked to small earthquakes

CONCERNED? Panel discussion on deep well disposal of concentrated brine laced with unspecified chemicals in an abandoned gas well in Pulteney will be held Sunday, February 7th at 1:00 - 3:00 pm at the Pulteney Fire House. Primary Guest Speaker: Congressman Massa

Panel: Walter Hang, Toxicologist and President of Toxics Targeting; Professor Tony Ingraffea, Cornell University; Rachel Treichler, Attorney and Environmentalist; Art Hunt, Owner of Hunt Country Vineyards and Steve Coffman, Author and Activist

ATTENTION: PULTENEY RESIDENTS AND TAX PAYERS PETITION:

We, the undersigned residents and tax payers of the Town of Pulteney NY 14874, call on the Town Board to adopt at the 2010 February Town Board meeting, a moratorium on the issuance of special permits for deep disposal wells in the Town of Pulteney until the town has had the opportunity to study the experiences of towns and cities in other parts of the United States which have permitted deep disposal well sites in their jurisdiction. The applicant for the special use permit must pay all costs pertaining to this process.
